Are you a qualified social worker with mental health experience looking for a brand new, exciting, and creative opportunity within Flintshire? Our mental health teams have led the way in developing services with people who use them, having great partnerships with our 3rd sector, and being innovative in what we do. We have an opening in the team and if you're looking for a social work role that is more than just assessment and care planning then this is for you!

This creative role involves supporting people to maintain/improve their mental well-being at the early stages and promote recovery by contributing to the work of Flint Hub, collaborating with both individuals and groups. The post holder will work in a variety of community settings with people presenting with factors affecting their mental well-being. The post seeks to identify what matters to people in order to promote their general health and prevent further decline.

The post holder will need to be well connected with community assets and seek to make links with these to offer solutions in partnership with individuals. The role involves the ability to work flexibly and creatively, and on one's own initiative as appropriate. The management team's approach will give you the autonomy and backing to think outside the box, with a supportive team of experienced colleagues that'll help you fit right in. We provide a comprehensive range of standard and bespoke training that'll help you grow in your social work role here, and we'll help you undertake your AMHP training while you're with us.

All this is on top of generous holiday and pension packages, great corporate discounts with retailers across the UK, and an employer ethos focused on a positive work-life balance.
